James Braga was born in 1906 in the British colony of Hong Kong, the eighth of thirteen children. In 1949 he joined the faculty of Multnomah School of the Bible in Portland, Oregon, where he taught homiletics, methods of Bible study, and missions for twenty-six years. Following his retirement in 1975, he continued as the school's chaplain for several more years and was widely loved and respected. He died in 1994, leaving a lasting legacy for his dedication to overseas missionaries and teachers.

Have used this as a review since I used it back in 1985 for a homiletics class in Denver when I was working for my Bachelor's in Biblical Studies. I needed a Kindle version and this has been very handy to go back and review and critique my sermon building techniques. It seems to be timeless as to it's usefulness.

Not sure I can say this book added to my knowledge of sermon preparation...somewhat disappointed.

I Really love this book, I am Pastor and have been for many years I believe this book is a key tool that every Pastor and church leader must have. I first revied this book while in Bible College, and truth be told blew it off, but since that freshman year really found the need for the breakdowns in this book as a key to my success on the pulpit. It really does help you get all the God wants his people to receive, it was very hard for me to get all my thoughts on paper in a way that could be understood. This book helped me to create outlines that would let the spirit of God flow and me to flow with him in my notes. This really is a must have for the young Pastor just starting out or the Pastor who has been preaching for years but struggles to your get your thought from God on paper so you can get them to the people, this is a tool that every spiritual mail needs!

I'm sure I will love it. Recommended by my theology professor.
