Customer Reviews

A Publishers Weekly Best Book of 2014 “With over 300 photos to illustrate everything from strides to strength programs, the authors clearly and concisely give readers helpful advice to improve their practice. Runners of all levels will appreciate the book’s breadth and encouraging tone . . . This is an informative, friendly guide that all runners can grow with and will likely return to over time.”

• Publishers Weekly, starred review

“This is so good. Honestly, I think this is the best running book ever.”

• Bob Anderson, founder of Runner’s World and of the Double Road Race 15K Challenge and the Double Training Program

“Build Your Running Body represents something new and needed in sports literature. This is the ‘right stuff’ for runners who want to get faster, enjoy running more, and stay injury-free for a lifetime.”

• Bill Rodgers, four-time winner of both the New York City and Boston marathons

“At last, a running book that shows us how to enjoy running all through life, and that’s as interesting as the sport we love so much.”

• Kathrine Switzer, first woman to officially run the Boston Marathon and author of Marathon Woman

“Build Your Running Body is the most useful, info-packed, and comprehensive training manual I’ve ever read. Coaches will find it invaluable, and runners of all levels will use it as a complete guide to reaching their goals.”

• Amby Burfoot, 1968 Boston Marathon winner and Runner’s World editor-at-large

“I wish I’d had an encyclopedia on running like Build Your Running Body long ago. It’s comprehensive, filled with relevant and valuable guidance, and articulated in a way that even the most novice runner can understand.”

• Jacqueline Hansen, two-time world-record holder for the women’s marathon, Boston Marathon winner, and first woman to run a sub-2:40 marathon

“A wonderful combination of running science with real-world wisdom for modern runners. When Pete Magill talks, smart runners listen.”

• Scott Douglas, Runner’s World senior content editor

“Coach Tom Schwartz possesses an understanding of training and racing that is world class. Utilizing an unconventional approach to training, Tom crafted a program that improved my endurance, my long-term development, and, most importantly, my confidence. Tom made me a champion.”

• Kevin Miller, multiple times USA masters age-group and age-graded national champion

“Build Your Running Body is nothing short of the Unified Theory of Running. Packed with delightfully fun-to-read advice and asides, it squeezes a century of technical research and coaching wisdom into a book of bite-sized lessons. Techniques and training, energy systems and recipes, race strategy and injury prevention – this book covers it all.

• Ken Stone, founder and editor of MastersTrack.com – “Pete Magill must have found the fountain of youth. I coach college students, and he consistently outruns half my team! He must know something the rest of us don’t!

• Steve Scott, former American record-holder in the mile (3:47.69), 3-time Olympian, 10 times ranked #1 American miler, and world record-holder for most sub-4 minute miles (136) – “You will not want to put Build Your Running Body down. It’s OK to miss a training day to learn from Pete Magill’s knowledge and experience – runners of all ages and abilities will be smarter just by getting this book in their hands. It’s filled with good, honest common sense gained from years of experience and results.

• Rod Dixon, winner of the 1983 New York City Marathon, Olympic Medalist, two-time World Cross Country Championship Medalist, and founder of KiDSMARATHON – “Build Your Running Body masterfully breaks down the essentials of running-specific training and will help bring you to the starting line of your next race happier, healthier, and faster than ever! Pete Magill is a master, and that’s not just an age group designation! The wealth of knowledge in this book is truly remarkable – it shares much of what has allowed Pete to continue to thrive as an athlete and has something to teach every aspiring runner out there. It’s truly a must have!

• Will Leer, 2013 USA Champion, Indoor Mile & Indoor 3000 Meters

Pete Magill has coached his running clubs to 19 masters national championships. He’s a five-time USA Masters Cross Country Runner of the Year and the fastest-ever American distance runner over age 50 in the 5K and 10K. He is also the lead author of Build Your Running Body. He lives in South Pasadena, California.

Thomas Schwartz – runs the popular website The Run Zone, and is an exercise physiologist and coach.

Melissa Breyer is the coauthor of True Food and is a Green Living columnist for Discovery Channel’s Treehugger.com.

Build Your Running Body – seems like one of the more thorough running books out there. Here’s a quick breakdown of the chapters...

-Chapter 1 covers basic running stuff such as motivation, gear, etc.

-Chapter 2 is what I think of as the meat and potatoes of the book. It tells you how to build the parts of your body to get you a better "running body". A few areas discussed include the muscles, connective tissues, hormones, nervous system - I like the some of these are things runners don’t normally think about.

-Chapter 3 talks helps you with a running program, talking about things such as a training schedule, recovery, injury prevention (BTW, runners with problematic hamstrings might want to check out Â Â Bulletproof Your Hamstrings-Chapter 4 discusses running and your diet-Chapter 5 talks about a racing strategy/approachAs you can see, its a pretty complete book that cover a lot of important (and little thought about) running information. There's also over a hundred workouts to help build your running body - from plyometrics to cross training - and there's even recipes! So if you're looking for ways to improve your running and your body, its worth a good look! :)

This book was an absolute wealth of information. I have been reading running books for information for a while now and this was in a league of its own! I would recommend this book to any runner especially the beginning runner.

If you are a runner and are serious about being a runner, get this book. While some of it does get a little technical you will find yourself going to the book often. The information in the book has proven informative even for a seasoned running veteran like myself.

Super fast shipping. Excellent experience.

Most excellent book! Very balanced and methodical. This is my new go to training manual for running.

Very good book. Help with my training and running.

Great for beginning runners! I've learned so much about different types of workouts and what pace is appropriate for each. Also has some good recipes and tons of instruction about training the whole body. Really excellent resource that I will be learning from for a long time.

Really great tips for running. Really breaks it down.
