As someone interested in the early Vedic period, I found the deck to be an utter disappointment. The majority of quotes are from various Swami's, the next most frequent source is the Gita. There is one single quote from the Laws of Manu, a quote or two from the Upanishads..... and NO quotes from any of the Vedas. You will see no mention of Indra, Varuna, Agni, Soma. The Vedas, Vedic deities, and entire Vedic period is ignored. If you have an interest in modern Hinduism, the deck may have mild interest (I say mild because it does not have the depth of anything like the I Ching or even Ralph Blume's New Age Runes) but if you are looking for quotes from the Vedas you will be as disappointed as I am.

I just recieved my Dharma Deck in the mail. I am totally impressed and amazed. The beautiful pictures totally capture the beauty and mistique of India. I was a little aprehensive at first to buy this deck because the cover is very different than the other decks that Mandala puts out... but as soon as I opened the cover, I realized what a great purchase it was. This deck is a must for anyone interested in the art and beauty of India.

I just received my deck today & cannot begin to express how disappointed I was to find that instead of showing Indra Sharma's beautiful art on these cards, instead they are photographs of people, places, & things. While they do contain the wisdom of Dharma & the Vedas, it was not at all what I expected. A big disappointment.
