Darren Wilsey is an award-winning composer, songwriter, music producer and music supervisor, who has written, produced and mixed music for an illustrious list of movie soundtracks, advertisements and television, including Sex & the City and The Hills. His co-author, Daylle Deanna Schwartz, is a respected music industry insider, author and educator, who ran her own record label for five years.

Just received this publication. Read about the first 3 chapters and I must say that as a person new to the business of music licensing, I am glad that I purchased the book. There is so much to really know about this aspect of the music business that many musicians take for granted or don't even know, I being one of them. This is a good reference to have on licensing, gives great insight, clearly written, and a good tool to plan your business and project plan for your future goals in the world of music licensing. The purchase was well worth it. Julio L. Matta

I use this in my international licensing class and it is a great resource for us. Has very clear explanations and discusses many copyright issues and how to properly licensing your own music. I would recommend for the musician who has some experience with copyright - not for the newbie.

Bought this when I took Darren's class. I still use it as a reference for licensing. There's a lot of useful information.
